OPEN FIRST DEFENSE PIPE LINE

Only 142 days after ground was broken for its construction, the nation's first national defense pipe line went into operation when Governor Sumner Sewall of Maine turned a giant valve at the South Portland pumping station of the Portland Pipe Line Company and sent the first batch of crude oil into the new $3,500,000 Esso pipe line. The oil will flow 236 miles under the rugged terrain of

Lost Army Bomber Causes Local Search

The Bethel Home Guard was called out about 11:30 Sunday morning after it had been reported that an army bomber, overdue at the Bangor airport, was believed to have crashed on a Hanover hillside. A large plane was heard by several people during the night before, and listeners at East Bethel reported hearing three shots shortly afterward. After the fog lifted Sunday morning it was thought that wreckage of a plane on a hill near the Sunflower Farm in Hanover was visible from the East Bethel side of the river, but this was found to be wood recently piled up.

Searching parties also covered the Farwell Mountain area where the leafless trees suggested the appearance of wreckage.

The discovery of the missing plane was reported on a hill in the wilderness about 10 miles south of Lee and Springfield in Penobscot County, about 50 miles north-east of Bangor. The four men in the plane were killed. The plane's wheels were down apparently a landing was attempted when the hill was struck in the darkness.

AUGUSTUS G. LITTLEHALE

Augustus G. Littlehale died suddenly Tuesday forenoon, near the home of E. H. Smith on Vernon Street, as he was walking home.

He was born in Newry, March 26, 1867, the son of Stillman and Lucy L. Littlehale. For the past 29 years he has been a resident of Bethel.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 o'clock at Greenleaf's funeral home. Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes officiating. Interment will be at the Sunday River Cemetery.

The Central Maine Chapter of the America First Committee will hold their first public meeting at Lewiston City Hall, Thursday, Nov. 27. Music will commence at 7:30 p. m. and the speakers will be at 8:00 p. m. Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota and William Gardner Jr. of Maine and Massachusetts will be the speakers of the evening.

Stressing our national defense and keeping out of foreign wars, these men who speak for the America First Committee will ably aid the citizens of Central Maine to understand that "Americanism" and "America First" are synonymous terms.

PRENUPTIAL PARTY

A party was given at the Acadia Hall in Rumford Sunday evening, Nov. 16, in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Marjorie Flan to Eugene Pulla. The affair was planned by Mrs. Joseph Pulla, mother of the groom-to-be. Miss Flan was the recipient of a breakfast set, curtains and linen.

Refreshments were served, followed by music and dancing. A most pleasant evening was enjoyed by 60 relatives and friends. Those attending from Bethel were Mrs. Stephen Sclaraffa, Mrs. Adeline Dexter, and Miss Dorothy Fish. The wedding will be held Saturday, Nov. 22, at nine o'clock, at the St. Athanasius Church at Rumford.

Help in your community. Classes in the above subjects will be taught in your community. If you wish to enroll in any of them notify your town Registration Chairman of the Women's Division. Civilian Defense, but remember in all these classes you must first have completed a course in First Aid. Red Cross is prepared to give you these classes to be a help to you, both at home and in the community in case of accident, sickness or disaster.

Norwood Ford, Hit by Car Monday—Will Recover

Norwood Ford of Locke Mills is making a good recovery at the Rumford Community Hospital, where he was taken Monday night after he was hit by a car operated by J. Ernest Roberts of Portland. The accident occurred in front of the E. L. Tebbets Spool Co. mill as Ford crossed the street after working in the mill.

It was believed at first that Ford received a fractured skull, but X-rays taken at the hospital showed that the temple bone is injured.

Roberts was not held. The accident was investigated by Deputy Sheriffs Robert Milton and Clark Hunt.

Citizens Group to Combat Gas Tax Increase

Paul C. Thurston of Bethel, former State Highway Commissioner, has announced the formation of a non-partisan, non-political, statewide citizens committee organized to oppose the one-half cent per gallon gasoline tax increase to be voted on at the special referendum election called by Governor Sewall for Wednesday, Dec. 10.

Officers of the committee in addition to Mr. Thurston, who is chairman, include Virginia Jones of South China and Benjamin Dorsey of Bangor as vice chairmen, and Dan W. Hoegg of Portland as secretary-treasurer.

"On two previous occasions the people of Maine have overwhelmingly defeated similar referendum proposals to increase the state gasoline tax," Mr. Thurston said. "It is time our legislature learned that the people of this state will tolerate no higher motor vehicle taxes."

"The members of the Maine Highway Taxpayers Committee have banded together in a loosely-knit organization to do all in our power to call to the attention of the public the fallacious reasoning of those who advocate the higher taxes and to do all in our power to combat this unnecessary, unwanted gasoline tax increase."

"The men and women who have accepted membership on the Maine Highway Taxpayers Committee, without exception, believe that the gasoline tax increase to be voted on at the referendum Wednesday, Dec. 10, is contrary to the best interests of the state and we believe it is our duty as public spirited citizens to come right out and say so."

"Those who advocate the $900,000 a year increase in taxes have been touring over the entire state giving talks as to why we ought to tax ourselves more. As a former State Highway Commissioner, I feel qualified to say that the one-half cent per gallon gasoline tax hike is not necessary and the members of the Highway Taxpayers Committee feel the same way about it."

Home Guard Signal Three Blasts

The call for members of the George A. Mundy Post Legion Brigade (Home Guard) is three blasts of the fire whistle, repeated once. With two such calls already this week, before general announcement of the signal, it is evident that such a plan is convenient and necessary. It is expected that practice calls may also be made, and arrangements may be made for sounding the mill whistle at West Bethel for members in that vicinity.

SEARCHERS UNABLE TO FIND DISTRESSED PERSON

About 60 volunteers and members of the Home Guard made a two hours search on the Mayberry farm on Grover Hill Tuesday evening, where it was reported that a call for help had been heard. A thorough combing of the woods and fields in the vicinity netted no results and the efforts were fruitless.

Holman to Discuss New Gas Tax Here

Charles H. Holman of Dixfield will discuss the new half-cent gas tax at a meeting at the American Legion Rooms next Wednesday evening, Nov. 26. Mr. Holman, representative to Legislature and president of Maine Taxpayers Inc., was sponsor of this tax bill which was passed in the last session. A referendum on the bill was initiated by the Maine Automobile Association and the voters of the State will register their decision on an election Dec. 10.

4-H RECORD GIRL

LEONA PLUNKETT, 20, of Bridgton, named by State Club Leader Kenneth C. Lovejoy as Maine's 1941 outstanding girl in "all around" 4-H homemaking projects, will receive an all-expense trip to the 20th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago Nov. 28-Dec. 6. Her ten-year record includes making 25 articles for room improvement, devoting 6,935 hours to cooking and housekeeping, sewing 23 garments, and canning 628 pints of foods. The girl led the highest scoring club in the county, was a member of blue award groups 19 times, and was named county bread champion. She will compete for one of six $200 scholarships provided by Montgomery Ward, donor also of her trip. The contest, held for the 19th year, is conducted in cooperation with the extension service to train 4-H girls in homemaking.

BETHEL LODGE ELECTIONS

The annual meeting of Bethel Lodge, No. 97, F. and A. M., was held last Thursday evening, preceded by a supper at 6:30 served by the Ways and Means Club. The following officers were elected: W. M., Leland Mason; S. W., Earle Palmer; J. W., William Hastings; treasurer, Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven; secretary, Earl Davis; S. D., Elmer Bennett; J. D., William Chapman; finance committee, Earle Palmer, Grover Brooks, Edmund Smith.

Red Cross Roll Call

Your local branch of the Red Cross is now conducting its annual roll call, each and every worker in the Red Cross is expected to be a member and wear his or her button of membership, and everybody is asked to do his bit by being a member of the Red Cross and helping to carry out this great program which was exemplified in the bible by the story of the Good Samaritan.

All over the country the National Red Cross is calling for twice its last year's membership. The reason for this is that the budget is greatly enlarged to carry on its activities for the coming year. Last year the budget was $4,360,000. This year it is $11,478,000.

The reason for this is the great increase in our armed forces which have increased from 125,000 to 1,700,000 men. At least one out of every 10 men require some service of the Red Cross. This service may be because some dear one at home is very sick and he is worrying just what he is going to do because he cannot be at their side and look after them. Well, the Red Cross gets in touch with that family and renders the aid he would give if he were present and if conditions are serious enough they arrange a furlough and passage home for him.

The Red Cross has some 65 buildings and are building 63 more in camps and forts all over the country and equipping them with a trained personnel to give this service to all who need it.

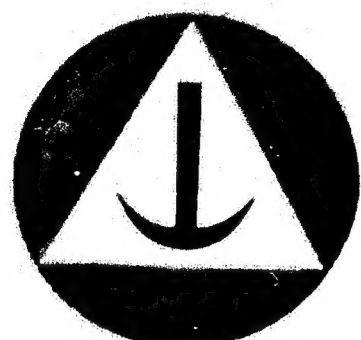

Your dollar for membership, 50 cents goes to the National Red Cross, the remainder stays in your local branch to be used for the needy and to pay for classes of instruction in Civil Defense, also to be used in case of local disaster. When a boy joins the service, he is not only a boy of some family but is a community boy for all to look after and help in any way we can. So give your dollar or more if you wish so that you may be not only a help to your boy but also a help in teaching First Aid, Home Hygiene, Gas, Warden, Motor Corps, Canteen and Disaster Relief in your community.

GOULD ACADEMY

For the first time in many years the dormitories will be empty during the Thanksgiving vacation. Nearly all of the students are returning to their homes and those living at a distance have been invited home by their schoolmates for the holiday.

The administration and students of Gould Academy are entering into the spirit of the time by the inauguration of two worthwhile projects. First, the sale of National Defense Stamps to the students and faculty. These stamps are on sale before school in the morning and at night in the main lobby. Monday's sale amounted to $20 and Tuesday was not far behind. The second project, under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Lawrence and Mrs. Elwood Ireland is a knitting club for the British War Relief.

NAGGING BACKACHE

Mac Wagon of Disturbed Kidney Action. Don't Neglect It!

Modern life with its excessive hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking, excessive smoking, drinking, excessive worry, and other causes, tends to disturb the kidneys and cause backache. The kidneys are the filters of the body and when they are disturbed, the whole system is affected. Symptoms of disturbed kidney function may be nagging backache, painful urination, blood in the urine, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of strength and energy. Other signs of kidney or bladder disturbance are burning, scanty or too frequent urination. In such cases it is better to rely on a medicine that has won worldwide approval than on something less favorably known. Use Doan's Pills. They have been written over and over for more than forty years. Be sure to get Doan's, sold at all drug stores.

DOAN'S PILLS

About 30 girls joined this group, which are knitting sweaters, caps, mittens, and several other needed articles. It is the plan of the girls to meet at least once a week at the principal's home and to make a social as well as a work project.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new basketball floor which is being built in the "cage" of the Farnsworth House. A rough floor has been completed and a finished floor will be started Wednesday with the hope of having it completed soon after the Thanksgiving recess. At the present time the boys are practicing in the William Bingham Gymnasium.

Football letters and certificates for the past season were awarded in assembly Wednesday by the principal, Alfred Fortier. Certificates were awarded to Whipple Abbe, Virgil Adams, Nicholas Amato, Captain Fremont Ireland, and Earl McNeil. Chenille G's were awarded to the following pupils who received their football letter for the first time: Vernon Bennett, David Hawkins, Oliver Morton, William Robertson, Jack Haines, Stanley Davis, Lewis Littlehale, Cleveland Lovejoy, James Reid, Arnold Bennett, and Edward Bean as manager.

In assembly Tuesday morning, students were shown one of the most interesting pictures we have ever had. It showed the high spots in nine of the major football games of 1940. The students were thrilled by the running of Tom Harmon and several other luminaries of the game.

Before the end of the week nearly all of the pupils will have taken the Kuder Vocational Test which is designed to light many interesting facts for both the students and the vocational director, Edmond Vachon. Robert Bateman, who is assisting in our guidance and orientation work, is also helping Mr. Vachon with these tests.

In order to take care of the commuting pupils who stay here at luncheon hour and find time heavy on their hands after they have eaten their luncheon, the administration has opened the William Bingham Gymnasium to the boys and girls on alternate days to enable them to play basketball, volleyball, badminton, or any other activity which may appeal to them. The girls' athletic council, with Hope Bean in charge, is looking after the girls' program, and a group of older boys, headed by Kenneth McInnis and William Grover, will have charge of the boys' activities.

Saturday night the boys had their fall dorm party at which time the faculty and the boys and girls from the town for the first time were invited to attend. Quite a number of town couples took advantage of the time and everyone had a very delightful time. The dorm was spiced and span from cellar to garret. Each boy's room was open for inspection. The majority of the evening was spent in games, eating and dancing, and there was never a dull moment. The program brought out the advantage of maintaining a "slim waistline" and admission was passed on this. The party was under the direction of Howard Chivers, the head of the boys' dorm and the entertainment committee: Elmer Runyon, Whipple Abbe, Robert Golderman, David Hawkins, Robert Sawyer, Virgil Adams, Vernon Bennett, and Oliver Ireland.

Wednesday, school ran in one session so that students could make connections at Portland with trains which would get them to Boston early in the evening.

The results of the try out for the Art Club were posted today and two classes have been formed, one meeting at activity period Tuesday, and another on Thursday. The following pupils have been accepted as members: Stanley Davis, Frank Murdock, Jacqueline Auter, Ella Morse, Katharine Kellogg, Oliver Morton, Buddy Clough, Malcolm Brown, Margaret Chaffee, Betty Runyon, Margaret Cates, Miriam Bull, Mary Lou Bauder, Maria Smith, Joan Prince, Mary Sue Adams, Guy Parker, Virgil Adams, Marilyn Marshall, Priscilla Cummings, Marjorie Foster.

Among those gaining practical teaching experience by taking advantage of the practice teaching project offered by the Education department at Bates is Barbara Moore, a recent graduate of Gould Academy. Miss Moore is at present engaged in a four week period of teaching at Rumford High. This policy of practice teaching has proved to be very popular with those students who plan to make teaching their future profession.

The first meeting of the Camera Club was held on Tuesday, Nov. 12, with President Virgil Adams. The members present were David Arnold, Gilbert LeClair, Mark Harvey, Edward Bean, Glendon McAlister, Clayton Sweatt, Anne Aldrich, Carolyn Goudy, Kenneth Dunlop, Marion Colby, Lewis Littlehale, Donald Clark, and Alfred Fortier as director. The business discussed was the setting up of objectives for the club, possible programs for each meeting, matter of dues, the purchasing of supplies and equipment. They voted to authorize the purchase of needed supplies not to exceed $10, and voted also to meet once a month. The following committee was appointed to study and make recommendations for action at next meeting on objectives for club: Gilbert LeClair, Chairman, Glendon McAlister, Carolyn Goudy, Louisa Bacon, and Clayton Sweatt. The president appointed the following to prepare the program for next meeting: Marion Colby, Donald Clark, and Edward Bean. The officers of the Camera Club are: President, Virgil Adams; Secretary, Stanley Davis; and Treasurer, Anne Aldrich.

DEFENSE BOND QUIZ

Q. When will the "drive" to sell Defense Bonds begin?
A. There will be no "drive." Many people think of the Defense Savings Program as like the Liberty Loan campaigns of the first World War, which were conducted for stated periods to raise specific quotas. The Defense Savings Program is a long-range continuing effort to stimulate the public to buy more and more Defense Bonds and Stamps monthly, and is essentially a program to promote mass saving, as well as to provide money for defense.

Q. Are the Defense Savings Stamps sold at retail stores exchangeable for Defense Savings Bonds?
A. Yes. They are the same as Stamps on sale at post offices and elsewhere.

Q. Who said: "I only regret that I have but one life to give for my country?"
A. Nathan Hale, who gave his life for America, like great numbers of his fellow countrymen. We are only asked to lend our dollars for Defense Bonds and Stamps to defend the liberty for which they died.

Q. Where I work there is no payroll allotment plan for the buying of Defense Savings Bonds and Stamps. How can I get one started?
A. This depends on your position and the kind of organization in which you are employed. Generally speaking, your immediate superior would be the proper person to receive your suggestion that you would like to have a voluntary pay-roll allotment plan introduced. The firm's bank can supply information about such a plan.

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest post office, bank or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C. Also Stamps are now on sale at most retail stores.

THIS WEEK IN DEFENSE

Summarizing Information on the Important Developments of the Week Made Available by Official Sources

Congress passed and sent to the White House legislation to repeal three key sections of the Neutrality Act—Section 2, banning merchant ship entry into belligerent ports; Section 3, barring combat zone travel; and Section 6, prohibiting arming of ships.

Navy Secretary Knox issued a statement that removal of the Neutrality Act shipping restrictions makes it "possible to get the defense aid materials authorized by Congress for use against the Axis powers transported to those positions where they can be usefully employed. It also insures...that the war efforts of the British Commonwealth, of China, and Russia, hold out greatly increased promise of ultimate victory."

In an Armistice Day address, President Roosevelt said the United States took up arms in 1917 "to make the world habitable for decent self-respecting men." He said the men who died then did so to "prevent the very thing that now has happened from one end of Europe to the other..." The President said the people of America believe liberty is worth fighting for, and if they are obliged to fight they will fight eternally to hold it. This duty we owe...to the many who died to gain our freedom for us...and to make the world a place where freedom can live and grow into the ages."

Captive Coal Mine Dispute

The Defense Mediation Board voted against a union shop agreement in the steel industry's captive coal mines and stated the United Mine Workers could "greatly strengthen their position before the people of the United States" by refraining from further strike action.

President Roosevelt asked leaders of the steel industry and the United Mine Workers to make "a final effort to insure continued production of coal for the manufacture of steel." The UMW acceded to the President's request that work in the captive mines continue pending further negotiations.

Lend-Lease Aid

President Roosevelt authorized Lend-Lease Administrator Stettin to "take immediate action to transfer defense supplies" to Russia. The OPM Priorities Division issued a special allocation order designed to promote a steady flow of from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 of American-made machine tools to the Soviet Union. The Navy announced two more British warships have entered U. S. ports for repairs.

Relations with China and Japan

The President told his press conference the United States has decided to withdraw American Marines from China. He said the Marines had offered protection to comparatively few Americans. Navy Secretary Knox, speaking in Providence, R. I., said efforts of the United States to maintain friendly relations with Japan have been "patient to a point almost unmatched in the history of the international relations, "but now" the hour of decision is here..." He said this country is "actuated in the Pacific no less than in the Atlantic solely by considerations of self defense."

President Asks Support for Red Cross

President Roosevelt asked for support of the Red Cross in its roll call for membership which closes Nov. 30, to prove that we have the heart as well as the sinews to keep ourselves strong and free..." The Red Cross announced it is seeking a membership matching its greatest World War figure of 18,000,000. Last year's adult membership was 9,200,000.

Civilian Defense

The Office of Civilian Defense issued specifications of dimensions, colors and materials for 16 insignia to be worn by trained volunteer workers. OGD Assistant Director Davison estimated volunteer workers needed in defense fields include 1,000,000 in first aid, 500,000 home gardeners, 100,000 each in life-saving, home nursing, school lunches and for staffs of local volunteer offices, 700,000 in the protection program, 600,000 rural leaders and 200,000 in the aircraft warning service. The OGD also issued a 60 page pamphlet on blackouts stating areas within 300 to 600 miles of seacoasts must be prepared to blackout on a "night to night" basis.

Production and Subcontracting

Vice President Wallace, speaking in New York City, said "By putting one-half our effort into national defense instead of less than one-fifth, we shall match what the British and Germans are doing..."

Priorities Director Nelson told the New England Council defense expenditures at present are averaging $1,175,000,000 a month, but "to win this struggle with reasonable speed and certainty" the country must spend approximately $3,500,000,000 a month on defense. OPM Associate Director Hillman announced some plants are working 160 hours a week with four 40-hour shifts but "this operation can and should be expanded." Three special trains sponsored by the OPM Contract Division have left Washington on a 40-day tour of 70 cities. The trains are carrying samples of needed defense parts to show manufacturers and facilitate the contract distribution program.

Prices

President Roosevelt, in a letter to Chairman Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, said additional taxes are needed to absorb purchasing power and "prevent a further sharp increase in the cost of living." The Senate passed and returned to the House for concurrence in amendments to bill to "freeze" rents in the District of Columbia as of January 1, 1941.

Price Administrator Henderson announced executive sales engineers with extensive experience in the industrial machinery field are needed in the OPA. Mr. Henderson also announced temporary stabilization of prices of a large variety of builders hardware and of rugs and carpets. He asked manufacturers of metal office furniture not to raise prices above the levels of November 6 when the OPM curtailed their production.

Priorities

Priorities Director Nelson began collection of month-by-month estimates of requirements for critical materials from all industries as a step toward eventual allocation of all critical materials, both to defense and non-defense industries. He said such a program—to apply first to steel, copper, aluminum, rubber and chemicals—might be put into effect within three months. Mr. Nelson "froze" all stocks of magnesium and allocated such stocks to defense orders only. He ordered production of light trucks for civilian use in January, 1942, cut 40 percent below the output for January of this year. He also extended priority assistance to production of materials for repairs to elevators and escalators and for construction of conveyor machinery.

Conservation of Materials

Associate Price Administrator Elliott announced "The Consumer's Pledge for Total Defense," which calls for elimination of waste and careful buying. She said business and civic organizations, the Boy Scouts, retail merchants, church groups, trade unions and women's organizations are cooperating to make copies of the pledge available to America's 30,000,000 homes. The OPM and OPA asked stove manufacturers to eliminate steel cover-lids for domestic cooking ranges by Dec. 15. The agencies estimated the change would save 2,500 tons of steel in 1942.

Labor Disputes

President Roosevelt created an emergency board to report within 30 days on a dispute between the Railway Express Agency, Inc., and teamsters and chauffeurs. OPM Associate Director Hillman said "the record in Washington shows...every difference between labor management has a basis for solution" without a strike. Labor Secretary Perkins certified to the Defense Mediation Board the threatened strike of employees of the Waterfront Employers Association of Washington, Seattle. The U. S. Conciliation Service announced settlement of 47 other disputes.

Organized labor in America is "no longer in swaddling clothes."

In those words Secretary of Labor Perkins recently stated a fact that labor leaders would do well to recognize. For labor has grown up.
And the time has come for it to act as though it has. We've heard a lot about labor's rights. It's time we heard about labor's responsibilities—responsibilities to its own members as well as to the public.

Today labor is big business. Every year it collects half a billion dollars, possibly more, from its members. What happens to this money few people know; often even the people who pay it can not learn how it's spent. The conviction of several local labor leaders for theft suggests that it's not all spent legally. Why shouldn't union officials be required by law to give an accounting of these funds? Why shouldn't they be required to run their business like other businesses?

Right now American labor stands at the cross-roads. Union terrorism instances of corruption in the affairs of various locals, unjustified labor wars, needless strikes—the time has come to stop them, and labor, if it's wise, will stop them now.—Industrial Press Service.

Stockpiles of Food for Peace

Here is what the U. S. Department of Agriculture means when it urges farmers to help produce "stockpiles of food for use after the war." The upper picture shows barrels of dried milk, just as good a year from now as today. The lower picture shows a warehouse filled with huge drums of cheese, even better with aging. These farm products, plus condensed milk, dried milk, cured pork, and canned meat and vegetables, constitute the stockpiles of defense food which, says Secretary Claude R. Wickard, will be needed by hungry Europe and "will exert the maximum influence at the peace conference table."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

OUTDOOR SILHOUETTES

For decorative shots, try silhouettes—either indoors or out. They're simply to take. Fast action subjects, of course, call for a fast shutter, but others can be snapped with any camera.

THIS past winter, no doubt, you made silhouette shots indoors, with a bed-sheet stretched over a doorway and your photo lights behind it. But don't forget that you can also make silhouettes outdoors—and these are attractive too.

The trick is simply to have the sun or brightest sky beyond your subject, instead of in front, and show your subject against a bright sky background. Then you under-expose. For example, if the normal exposure would be 1/25 second at f/11 lens opening, you would use 1/25 second at f/22 to get the silhouette effect.

With a box camera, you would take a snapshot as usual, but first you would set the lens for the smallest possible opening. Most regular box cameras have a little lever or slide which enables you to do this. The proper film is the "chrome" type, because it is a bit slower than "pan" film in late afternoon—and that is just what you want in this case.

There is one point on which you must be careful. Don't allow direct rays of the sun to enter your lens. You can avoid this by having a tree or some other object between the camera and the sun. Sometimes you can conceal the sun squarely behind your subject, and that is an excellent arrangement for good silhouette effects.

To show the subject against the sky, you just select a low camera position—down close to the ground. This, in effect, raises the subject higher. Such a camera position was used to take the picture above. Of course, an action picture like this calls for a fast shutter—say 1/400 second, with the lens set at f/8.

However, there are hundreds of outdoor subjects that can be pictured "in silhouette" even with the most inexpensive cameras. Water scenes, profile shots of people, buildings against the sunset sky—these are good examples. And a silhouette shot always has a neat, decorative quality that makes it welcome in your album.

THE RANGER'S COLUMN

H. C. Waldo

—Androscoggin District Ranger—

White Mountain National Forest

DISBANDMENT of another National Forest Civilian Conservation

Corps Camp is the result of the shortage of enrollees to fill all the existing camps. Camp Thornton was closed on Nov. 12 and the remaining enrollees there have been transferred to other camps in this area. On the National Forest only one camp remains, Camp Peabody located on the Pinkham Notch Highway near the Dolly Copp Recreation Area.

Changes of the supervisory personnel resulting from the closing of the Thornton Camp are numerous. The Ranger regrets the loss of many trustworthy and efficient co-workers but rejoices in the fact that increased employment is the reason for closing the camps which were created to provide employment during the depression.

As each camp closes our existing warden organization must be expanded and developed to meet the need for emergency workers.

FREQUENT RAIN AND SNOW

seem to be bringing the fire season to a close. Two lookout towers West Royce and Mill Mountain have already been closed and the remaining three towers will be closed this week. Storing blankets in mouseproof containers, installing the shutters, adjusting the guy wires for winter temperatures and last but not least, leaving a good supply of wood for next spring.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Six men traveled the Chibougamau trail in the wilds of north Canada. Six men died. They were reported drowned in the rapids. But, strange as the camp fires expressed things, Garry Finlay, whose brother Bob was one of the six; Red Malone, a half-breed guide, in the line of survivors, arrive to investigate deaths. Finlay had received an anonymous letter declaring that the men were ordered. There is a suspicion that Isadore, his man, has made important gold strikes in the Waswanipi country and will stop at nothing to keep prospectors out.

CHAPTER II—The inhabitants are in terror of Isadore and his right-hand man, Tete-Blanche.

CHAPTER III—On the second day out, as they had safely passed the worst of the rapids, the three investigators were ambushed from shore. Garry and Blaise were slightly wounded.

CHAPTER IV—From Indians Blaise learned ten days later that there is much excitement among them over a "bird" from the south, and that there is talk that three men perished in Nottaway.

CHAPTER V—Finlay and Malone visit Isadore in his magnificent home. A fly-skipper to poison them is frustrated by a clever trick by Malone.

CHAPTER VIII—The Indians have been stirred up to believe that the survivors' transit is an "evil eye" that is causing sickness among their children. Finlay gets a note from Lise, daughter of Isadore, with whom he has fallen in love, imploring him to help her escape from Isadore, whom she fears Garry is a decoy.

CHAPTER IX—Garry meets Lise in response to her appeal. He is surrounded and knocked unconscious by Isadore's men after killing three of them.

CHAPTER X—Garry recovers consciousness tied to a tree and suffering from insect bites. The dog, Fame, chews through the leather thong and releases him. Later he is found by Malone and Blaise.

CHAPTER XIV—Later they land on an island and are attacked by Indians under the influence of whiskey supplied by Tete-Blanche.

CHAPTER XV—Lise and her mother are deeply concerned over the intentions of Isadore toward the police party. Lise receives a note from Garry telling her to make preparations for her escape.

CHAPTER XVI—A medicine man performs his trickery before an assemblage of Indians and urges them to kill the white men.

CHAPTER XIX

The following night six canoes drifted silently up to the hidden police camp. It was Wabistan and his friends. Finlay decided that it was time to reveal his identity to the old man. He drew him to one side with Blaise.

"Tell Wabistan who we are, Blaise, and why we are here."

The eyes of the old chief glowed like black tourmalines.

"Wabistan navare forget. He come to help his friend."

"We must wait until the flying canoe comes from the North," said Finlay. "Then we'll go to Isadore's."

"Yes, we wait," agreed the old man. "We wait." He turned to Blaise and spoke rapidly in Montagnais.

"Wabistan say he go to Matagami for flour, shell and tobacco. He come back in three-four day. He start now."

On his morning of the fourth day after Wabistan's departure for Matagami, Finlay and Red were watching the post through binoculars from the shore of one of the islands.

"He's got a regiment of Indians over there, Red," said Garry.

"It looks as if we'd bitten off a large chunk of trouble."

"We sure have, Red."

"But we're going in just the same and grab that ship."

"We are, Red."

That night, on returning from the lake with water, Blaise called to Finlay where he sat with Lise by the fire. "Come to de shore! I show you something."

They stood on the gravel beach and Blaise pointed across the lake to the western hills where a dull glow streaked the violet sky.

"Why, it's a forest fire!" exclaimed Finlay.

"You suppose Wabistan's behind this?"

"That's just what I suppose, Red!"

On the second day the yellow smudge of sun glowed dully through a shroud of smoke. Like a barren under heavy snow the great lake lay shrouded in its gray pall. A canoe was invisible at a distance of one hundred feet. Leaving Lise in camp, the three men, with Patamish, started in the Peterboro for Isadore's.

They landed below the post and put Patamish ashore to find Lise's hidden clothes bag, learn what he could and return at once.

"What's that, Garry?"

"It's that overdue planet. Come on! He's caught and can't see where to set her down!"

Nearer and nearer came the approaching plane. At last, judging from the roar of the motor the plane was over the canoe and going east.

"Give him three shots, Red! He could circle and set her down south of us if this breeze would only stiffen!"

The Lee-Enfield crashed three times.

"He heard our shots!" He's circling!" With the rush of a great bird the plane shot past the canoe, caught the water with a splash and bobbed on ahead to disappear into the smoke haze.

Finlay shook his lifted paddle. "We've got him! Come on! They may start hunting him from Isadore's."

As the boat moved up to a pontoon a voice called from the open door of the cabin fuselage: "That you, Isadore? I've been lost two hours hunting—"

"Don't move a hand!" Red rasped. "Come out on the pontoon, one hand in the air!"

"What the—what's wrong here!" objected the astonished pilot. "This is Waswanipi, ain't it? Where's Isadore?"

"Come out on—that—pontoon—or—"

"I know when I'm licked!" he said.

"Into that canoe!" ordered Finlay. "If he moves, Blaise, drill him!"

"Say, what's this, a case of high-jack? Who are you birds? Where's Isadore?"

Finlay flung back from the door of the fuselage: "We're Mounted Police and you're under arrest!"

"Good Gawd!" The pilot's face dropped into his hands.

Finlay peered into the freight compartment of the plane. "Look, Red! She's loaded with cases."

"Now what in the devil's this stuff?"

"Red," announced Garry, opening the tinfoil wrapper of the package in his hand, "these are nothing else than bricks of opium, worth one hundred and fifty dollars apiece in Amsterdam. What Isadore gets for them, God only knows! We've struck Isadore's gold, Red! And what a stroke!"

Red's blue eyes bulged as he stared at the opium brick in Finlay's hand. "Well, I'll be hamstrung! Faking a gold strike on the river to cover his smuggling dope from a ship on the Bay That clears up a heap!"

"It did more. We've solved by accident the most baffling case of narcotic smuggling in the history of the Dominion police. They've been watching the seaports for years for this stuff. It was sent from Europe by a schooner to Hudson's Bay, flown here and then south. Don't you realize that this means a citation and promotion for us both?"

Garry's face sobered with mock gravity. "You will remember, Constable Malone, that we have suspected this from the day we reached Waswanipi and have hung on by our teeth for the sole purpose of capturing this shipment and breaking up this ring of smugglers."

"In a bear's left eye I will! We've been after Isadore for murder and still are. But chief, Mrs. Thistle Malone will never know that her red-headed husband isn't as clever as he looks."

Towing the plane, they groped their way into a cove and anchored it to makeshift buoys. At the camp on the mainland Wabistan was waiting.

"If the wind holds, the fire will reach Isadore's," said Finlay.

Wabistan's face wore the innocent look of a child. "Yes, Isadore will burn."

"You set that fire, chief!"

A pained expression spread over the gnarled features of the old man. He shook his head in dissent. "No one evar know who set dat fire," he replied.

Finlay's eyes twinkled. "Whoever did it, chief, was a personal friend of mine. The fire will take most of Isadore's men into the bush, today, and give us our chance. Now, let's move."

Finlay said good-by to Lise and led the canoes across the lake.

Finlay and Red, wearing service blouses, belts and Stetson hats, hurried with Blaise to the living quarters. They stood in the doorway of the large living room. At a table on which stood bottles and glasses, two men sat arguing with voices hoarse from prolonged drinking.

"We've got to get out of here, right away!" A large man with a soft face, white from indoor living, pounded his fist on the table, unconscious of the two watching in the doorway.

"Jules, this place is doomed! Look at the smoke outside!"

Isadore, who sat with back to the doorway, sneered: "That's from the back-fire Tete-Blanche started! Felix, you're yellow! It won't reach us! We'll stop it on the ridge!"

"I'm going to get out, I tell you!" whined Blondell.

"You're drunk!" snarled Isadore. Then, catching the raw terror in Blondell's stare, he wheeled in his chair to meet Finlay's stone-hard face.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen!"

Isadore sat frozen. "Mounted Police! So this is what you were? Damn me for a fool!"

"Okay!" snapped Malone.

The police approached the two walling men.

"It was pretty soft while it lasted, Isadore, this little gold strike, but you murdered the wrong man when you had Bob Finlay shot!" All Finlay's pent bitterness echoed in his words. "You're through!"

Isadore's hand carelessly reached for the drawer in the table.

"Keep your hands still, Isadore!" snarled Red.

"We've got your plane from the Bay!" Finlay bit off. "That gives us our motive. Didn't want it known in Montreal—that plane from the north! Don't blame you! They've been wondering where that dope came from! Well, you're going to hang for those six men!"

Isadore shook his head as he met the stab of Finlay's pitiless eyes. "No, Jules Isadore will never hang!"

The sound of voices in the rear of the house put the police on their guard. "Watch this door!" warned Malone as he flattened against the wall beside the closed door.

The door was swung wide and, covered with char and soot, the panting Tete-Blanche stared into the room.

His smudged face flamed as his bloodshot eyes marked Finlay standing over the two men. Ignoring the 45, with a lightning movement the half-breed reached behind his back and flung his hand forward with a grunt. The knife sang like an arrow past the chest of the dodging Finlay, who held his fire, and stuck quivering in the wall beyond.

"The white-haired boy, at last!" With a roar Red dove from the side at the surprised breed, hurling him headlong into the room. Like a cat Tete-Blanche gained his feet and closed with the trooper.

"Don't move!" bit off Finlay, covering Isadore with his .45 as the two fought across the room.

The killer was powerful and slippery as a snake. Winding his legs around Malone's, they went to the floor with a crash. Fighting with the strength of despair again and again Tete-Blanche wriggled out of the jiu-jitsu grips Red started to put on him. Then the enraged Malone wrenched his right hand free and hunched his fist into Tete-Blanche's jaw. But the panting killer only snarled and redoubled his efforts to break the trooper's hold.

"White-haired killer, are yuh?" Red sneered through his teeth.

"How's this, killer?" And he jammed a savage uppercut into Tete-Blanche's chin. But the breed was made of iron and only shook his head as if to clear his dazed brain.

Then, with a wrench, he strained forward and bit into Malone's arm.

By sheer strength the infuriated Mountie pinned his man to the floor, forced back his chin and jammed his thumbs deep into the vital pneumo-gastric nerves under the jaw. A shudder ran through the half-breed and he lay helpless from the shock.

Malone lifted him, rose, and hurled him headlong into the stone fireplace.

"There's your killer, Isadore! He'll shoot no more boys from ambush! Take him! He's yours!"

Isadore's face was drained of color as his dulled eyes stared at the sprawled heap on the hearth. Then he slowly nodded as he muttered: "Yes, there he is! There he is! A'voir, good and faithful servant!"

With a quick movement his hand shot to the desk drawer, fumbled, then found his mouth before the surprised Finlay seized him. He swallowed twice then sneered into Finlay's face: "No rope for Jules Isadore! I prefer prussic to hemp! Good-night, gentlemen!"

cept two chimneys, I suppose," he said as he sat, his arm holding her close.

"It's better that way. It became a place of horror to me. Think of the men who have died because of the avarice of Jules and Blondell."

"He was the coldest fish I've ever met."

"But to think it was drugs he was covering up and not gold at all! I suppose he feared if he allowed prospectors here, some day the police would hear of that mysterious plane from the north and his game would be up."

"Exactly. He killed six men to make the Chibougamau Trail from Nottaway a death-trap—something men feared."

"But you took it."

"I had a brother lying somewhere on that trail and it was my job. Also there was a girl at Waswanipi I was dying to meet. Ever heard of her?"

She shook her head and a cloud of dark hair veiled his eyes.

"You'll get the credit of suspecting he was smuggling opium and of hanging on to capture that plane."

She kissed him on the nose and rumpled his crisp hair. "But, cross my heart! I'll never breathe a word—never tell how surprised you were! You're the dearest sergeant in the whole Mounties even if you did stumble on dope when you thought you were hunting gold," she teased.

"For that, beautiful, you are sentenced to a hundred kisses to be applied until dead!"

"Is that all? Please make it a thousand! A hundred's no punishment! It's merely a slight recompense for loving you so much."

For a long time the canoe drifted in the veiled moonlight while the airedale in the bow wondered why humans sat so long without speaking.

In the morning the hum of an engine drew Garry and Blaise to the shore.

"Who can it be, Red? Isadore wasn't expecting another plane."

Red grinned. "Not that I know of!"</

His eyes snapping with amusement Malone handed his glasses to his chief.

"Blue body! Yellow wings! Why, it's one of ours, Red! It's a police plane! The Mounties are here!"

The plane was set down and taxied up to the waiting canoe.

The cabin door opened and a red-jacketed man with a grizzled moustache leaned out and waved. "Hi, Sergeant Finlay! Are you all right?"

Garry Finlay thrilled with pride as he replied: "Everything okay, Inspector Haldane!"

Shortly Finlay was telling his story to the inspector and the four men of the rescue party. When he finished, Haldane enthusiastically reached and clapped him on the back.

"Do you realize what you've done against what looked like hopeless odds? You two men have broken the biggest ring of opium smugglers the Canadian police have ever had to deal with!"

Later, when good-bys had been said, Wabistan sat in the Peterboro loaded with supplies which Finlay had given him. With Mikisis and Patamish, he waved to the climbing plane carrying Garry, Lise and Corinne.

Followed by the two planes carrying Red, Blaise and the prisoners, bound for Matagami to take the depositions of McNab and his head man, the police plane circled into the west. For a space in silence Finlay gazed back into the northeast where dim, blue hills marked the Waswanipi valley. Lise watched him curiously as he stiffened, lifted his hand in salute and said:

"Good-by, Bob! The Chibougamau Trail is clear!"
